The Abstract Factory groups part creation for a family of parts so the family can be changed.

- Define an common interface for each family element that the application uses
- Define a class that is responsible for creating all elements in the family via a factory method for each element
- Application instantiates desired factory

Example: WidgetFactory